第3問

(例1)

I agree with the rule that all new first-year students should live in a dormitory for at least one year for two reasons. The first reason is that if you live in a dormitory, you can make many friends. Then you can ask them for help with homework or ask other questions, and you can start your school life smoothly. reason The other reason is that if you live in a dormitory, you do not have to buy furniture and other things for your apartment. That's an economical advantage in starting a university life. (94 words)

(例2)

I disagree with the rule that all new first-year students should live in a dormitory for at least one year for two reasons. The first reason why living in a dormitory is not good is because there is no privacy. Even if you want to make phone calls to your family, sometimes it is difficult to be alone. The second reason against living in a dormitory is that you may have problems with your roommate. You may have an untidy roommate, and have difficulty asking him or her to clean up the room.
